What are cookies?

An "Internet Cookie" (also known as "browser cookie" or "HTTP cookie" or "cookie") is a small file, consisting of letters and numbers, which will be stored on computer, mobile device or other equipment of an user by which internet can be accessed.

Cookies are installed through the request issued by a web server to a browser (e.g.: Internet Explorer, Firefox, Chrome). Once they are installed, cookies have a determined lifetime, and remain "passive" meaning that they do not contain software, viruses or spyware and will not access the information on the user's hard drive on whose equipment they have been installed.

A cookie consists of two parts:

- cookie name and
- content or value.

How and why do we use cookies?
